STRIKE NEARS

Six Special Policemen Guard New York Subway Station

New York, March 6.—Six special policemen were placed on guard today at the Times Square subway station following receipt of two letters suggesting that the threatened strike of subway and elevated workers would be hastened if the station were bombed.

Although police expressed the belief that the letters were written by harmless cranks, every precaution was taken.

Meanwhile hope of averting the strike waned. Unless the Interborough Rapid Transit Co. changes its attitude and agrees today to arbitrate its differences with the Amalgamated Association of Street and Railway Employees.

the workers are expected to vote to join the Amalgamated in defiance of the company's rule. Mayor James J. Walker, who has urged arbitration, today had 21 workers who were expected to join the Amalgamated in defiance of the company's rule.

IF YOU GET A RAISE THIS MONTH Here's Food for Thought

BETWEEN 1921 and 1926 the income of the United States grew from 62 to 90 billion dollars. An increase of 28 billions or $573 per person!

While earnings went up, living costs went down. The dollar will buy more today than in 1921.

During this time of increased earnings and lowered living costs, how much of the surplus, thus made, did you put into permanent savings?

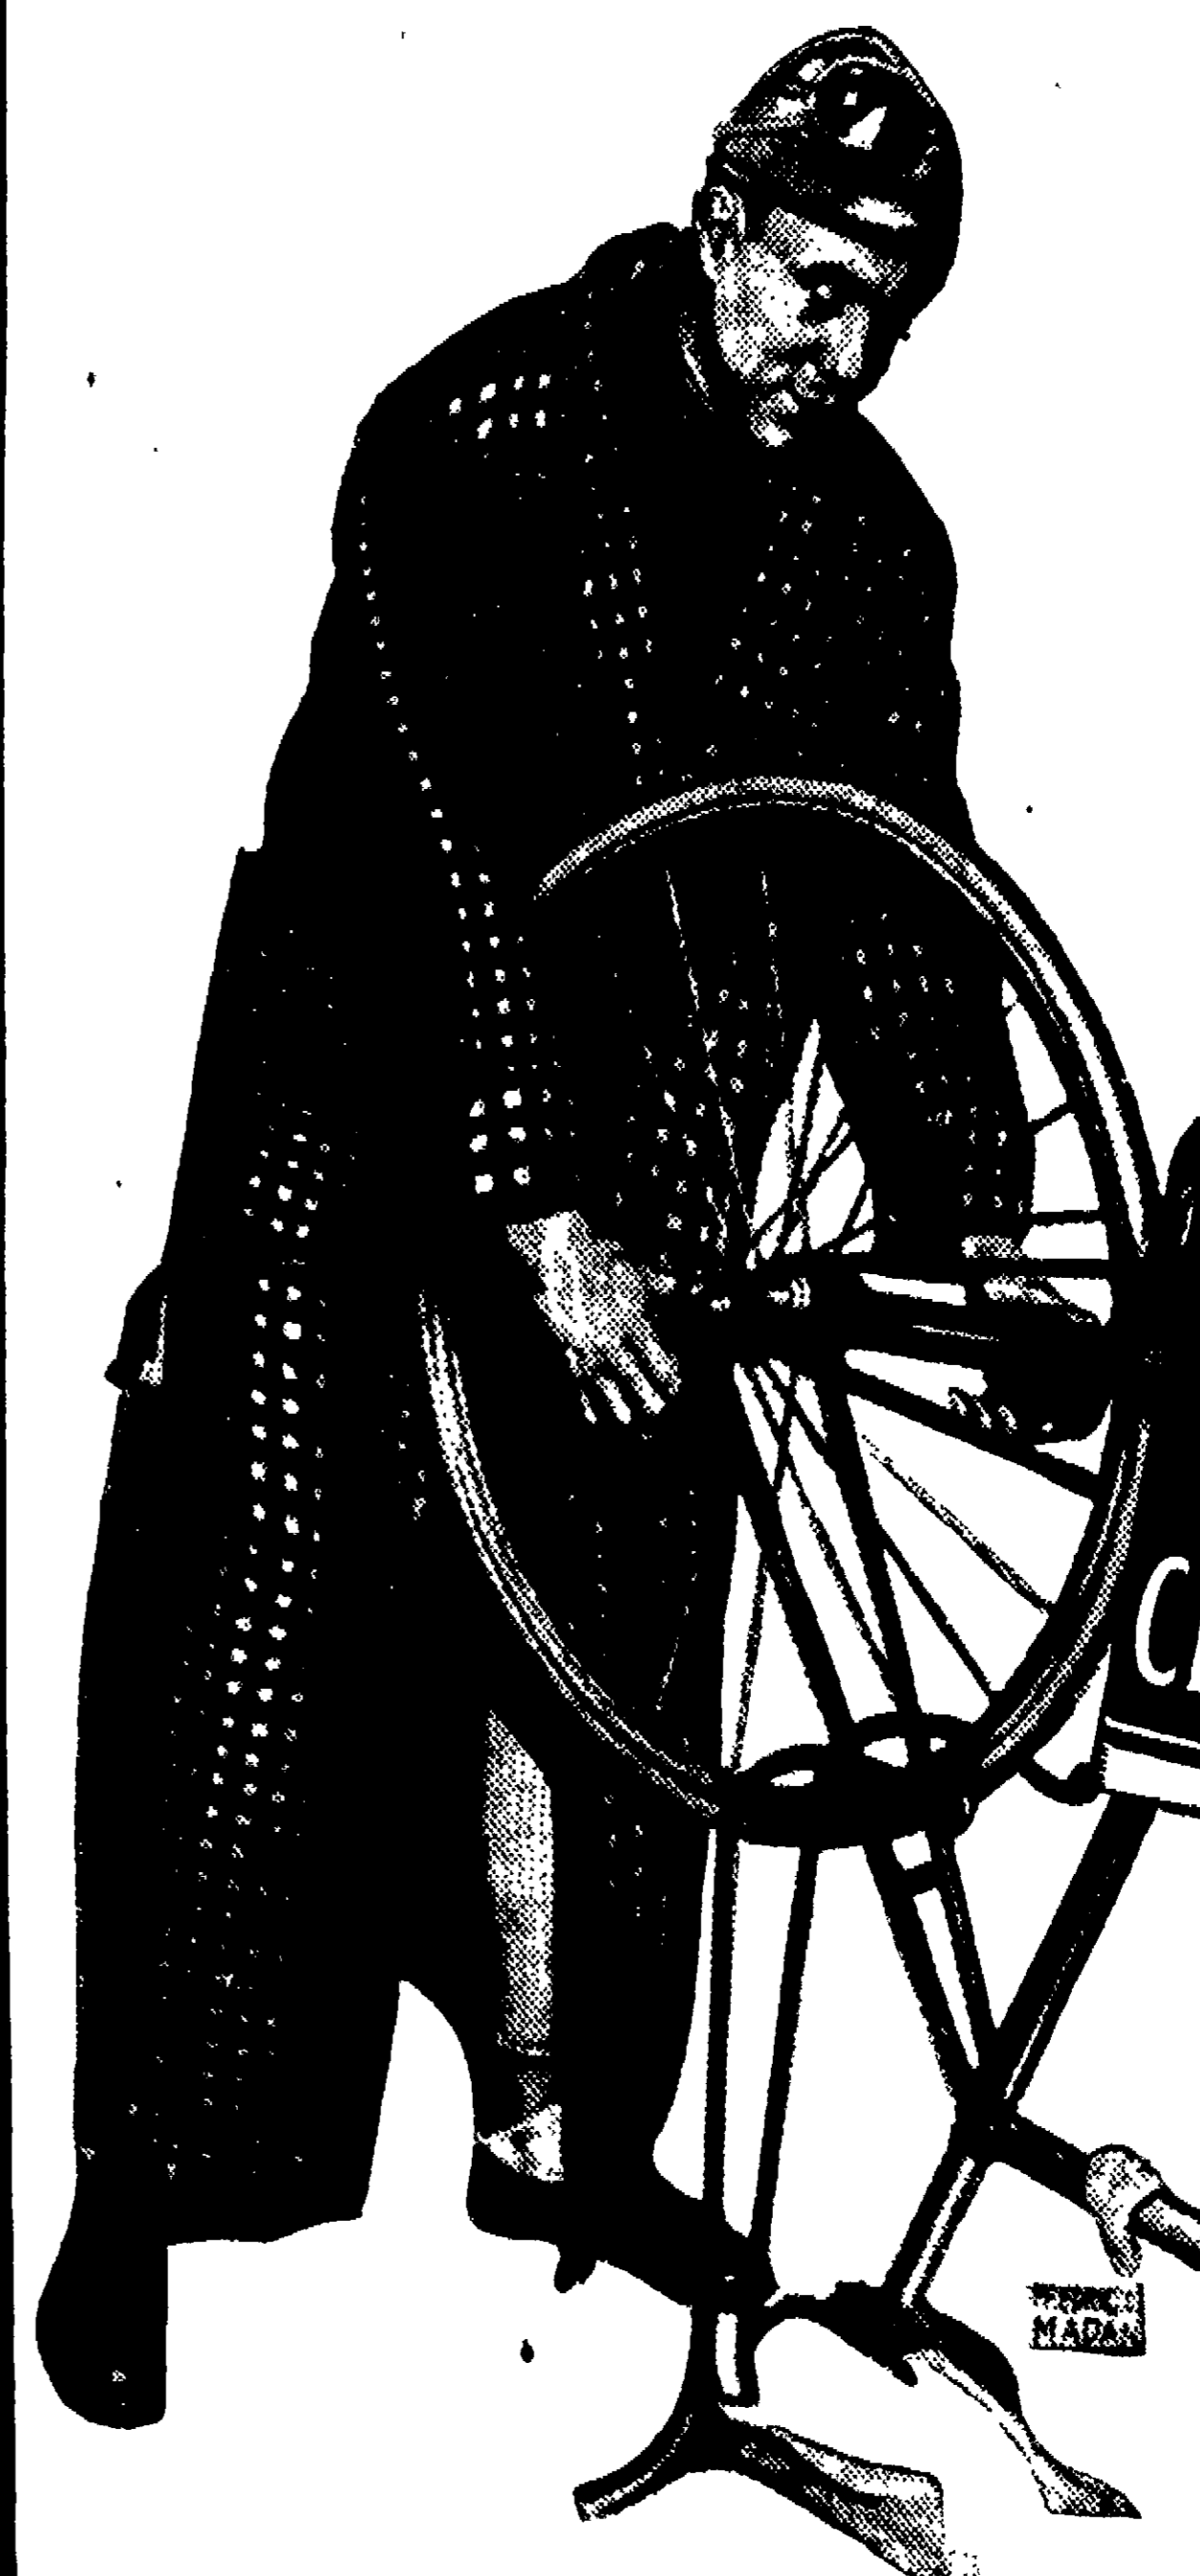

If you got a raise the first of the year, will you keep expenses down and save part of it, or will you let your expenses increase and consume it all?

A SECLUDED beach. Two young men and a girl—a starry-eyed girl with a lovely young figure, a head of dark, soft-curling hair, a mouth made for kisses.

The Girl (shivering)—I'm cold. I should have brought a wrap.

Both men, madly in love, leap to their feet, eager to do her a service. Fate chooses the one called Lawson.

He hurries up the beach to the cottage colony, a sudden nameless fear clutching at his heart. Quickly he returns. Stanley, his lifelong pal, his buddie, rises at his approach.

Stanley: Congratulate me, Lawson, old boy. Patricia has just consented to be my wife.

(II)
Night. The air is hot and still. Low rumblings warn of an approaching storm.

Stanley, Patricia's husband, is away on business. Lawson and Patricia are in the house alone.

Lawson paces his room, dry-lipped, feverish, as he ruminates on these days that try his soul.

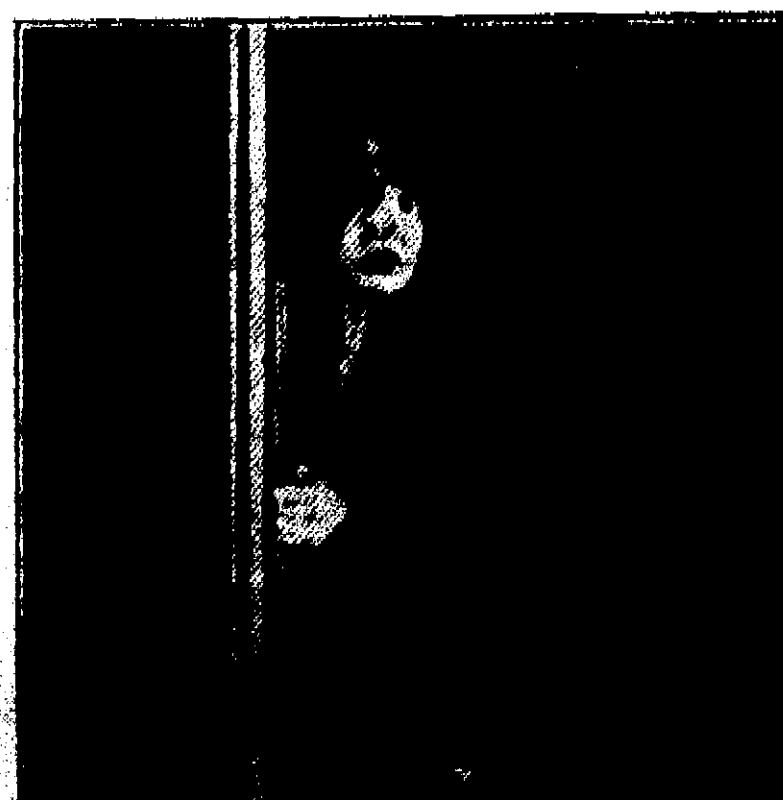

What a fool he had been to listen to their pleadings to make his home with them. Why had he yielded to the temptation to stay so dangerously close to Patricia—to hear her voice—to see her daily—to worship her under the same roof with her husband—his friend!

JA'FAR, WAR HERO, IS HONORED BY TWO SIDES

Baghdad—One of the few leaders in the Great War to have won honors from both sides is Ja'far Pasha who recently resigned as Prime Minister of Iraq, following a sharp clash with King Feisal.

The disclosure of the different honors which fell to Ja'far Pasha is made by Robert Graves who in his "Lawrence and the Arabs" recalls that Ja'far was awarded the Iron Cross in 1925 for fighting on the side of the Germans in the desert west of Egypt. He was captured by a British regiment and while a prisoner realized that the better side for Arab independence was the British.

The British who set him free to join the Emir Feisal, now the monarch with whom he has fallen out, Ja'far became commander-in-chief of the Arab army, being awarded by the British, after the capture of Damascus, the title of Commander of St. Michael and St. George.

HEALTH
HINTS
For Parents

Here's a way to make the most delicate baby like and hearty, and "hard as nails." A way to build the body, and put on weight. Here's a hint, and no boy or girl of yours will ever take another cathartic!

Most ailments of children begin with being bilious; and the trouble then and there, with a spoonful of California Fig Syrup. Nothing stronger, nothing else. The bowels will do their duty without using force! If your children have already contracted the laxative habit, the syrup will wean them away from it.

California Fig Syrup is a purely vegetable product. It is not only a world of good; it is, in fact, a very wonderful conditioner for children or adults. Its rich, fruity flavor is so delicious, it's no hardship to take! Nor can it harm even an infant. Only one caution: be sure to get the genuine California Fig Syrup; don't neglect to say "California." It isn't expensive—sixty cents for a generous bottle at all dealers.

The California Fig Syrup is on any child, and let his alert parents and action tell the full story.

PROBERS ON TRAIL OF LIBERTY BONDS

Report Says Advertising Firm
Paid $70,000 for Campaign Work

Washington, March 6.—Government investigators were on the trail today of a new Liberty Bond transaction by the Republican National Committee, which may have grown out of the Continental Trading Company's mysterious $500,000 "slush fund."

The Senate Public Lands Committee already has learned that Harry F. Sinclair, lease of teapot dome, gave $200,000 in Liberty Bonds to the Republican National Committee, of which only $100,000 was returned to him, to pay off a deficit of the 1920 campaign.

Agents for the committee have been at work for several days, tracing the numbers of the $100,000 "gift" bonds, to learn whether they were a part of Sinclair's profits from the Continental company.

The new Liberty Bond deal, it was learned, involves a national advertising firm, which was paid approximately $70,000 in Liberty Bonds for doing campaign work for the Republican National Committee in the 1920 campaign.

The committee has subpoenaed M. J. Pessin of New York to testify Thursday in regard to this deal. Pessin was reported to have handled the advertising contract.

Thus far the Republican National Committee has never accounted for any Liberty Bond gift that could have been used to pay this debt. The $100,000 in Sinclair bonds were accounted for by W. H. Hays, national chairman of the party in 1920.

FLEEING MAN ELUDES SHERIFF AFTER CHASE

Officer Empties Revolver When Suspicious-Looking Individual
Takes to Heels

Sheriff James A. Deal, Deputy Vane Ireland and a suspicious looking individual believed to have been planning a burglary were the principals in a spectacular chase this morning in which the suspect finally eluded his pursuers after being made the target of five shots from Deal's revolver.

The thrilling pursuit, staged in the early morning hours while no citizens were up to witness it, started about 2 o'clock on E. Vine-st., a short distance south of Mt. Vernon-st., when Deal and Ireland were returning in the sheriff's automobile after answering a call on an investigation case.

Deal sighted the man walking down Vine-st. and his actions aroused the officers' suspicions. Deciding to investigate, the sheriff and his deputy turned their car at the Mt. Vernon-st. intersection, whereupon the suspect took to his heels, darting between two Vine-st. residences.

Deal jumped from the automobile with gun in hand and started in pursuit, instructing Ireland to circle around the streets in his automobile.

The chase which followed, covered almost a mile of streets and alleys, finally ending at the rear of Epworth M. E. Church, where Deal fired his final shot and his quarry disappeared.

Believe He Caught Train

The sheriff and his deputy could find no further trace of the fugitive and are of the opinion that he found his way to the railroad north of Center-st. and probably caught a freight train out of town.

Deal describes the man as stockily built, attired in civilian clothes and an army overcoat, and a "mighty speedy runner."

VELMA WEST GIVEN SENTENCE OF LIFE

Enters Plea of Guilty to Second Degree Murder Charge

guilty to murder in the second degree. "It is," she said in a barely audible voice.

"Have you anything to say at this time as to why the court should not pass sentence upon you?" asked the silver-haired kindly-faced judge in tone a father would use in addressing his daughter.

"No, sir, I have not," replied Velma, her hands nervously clasped and unclapping a handkerchief.

Then with Velma and Attorney Poulson standing before him, the judge launched into an explanation of his position before he announced his sentence.

"This matter of your being allowed to plead guilty to murder in the second degree did not come up suddenly," Judge Ames said, speaking to Velma.

"It had been discussed by lawyers for both sides in chambers yesterday. The lawyers took the matter up with the court and asked what they should do under the circumstances."

"We went over the matter thoroughly. I also conferred with Judge A. G. Reynolds (the judge who presided at Velma's arraignment)."

Her Lips Twitch

"This court and Judge Reynolds came to the conclusion that in view of the evidence the state could not expect to get a conviction of higher than murder in the second degree."

"I don't think this is the time for talking about this case. The community knows all about it. It has had its regrettable aspects. The mandate of the law is the most potent of all and that mandate has to be fulfilled."

"Never before in my career as a judge have I sentenced a woman in a case of this kind."

"The law says that the punishment for second degree murder shall be confinement in the reformatory for women for the rest of your natural life. That is the sentence the court imposes upon you."

A flush mantled Velma's neck. Her lips twitched and she seemed to collapse. When she returned to her seat, the matron, Mrs. Cora Nash, patted her soothingly on the shoulder. Then her father came over and they cried softly together, the father's arm around his daughter's slim shoulders.

Remains with Velma

You West remained with Velma until they escorted her back through a tunnel to her cell in the little red jail back of the courthouse. Mrs. Van West was not in the courtroom when sentence was passed. She is ill in her home in Cleveland and was unable to come to court this morning.

His husband telephoned her and told her Velma accepted the verdict.

"It was the best thing under the circumstances," said the father. "I certainly am going through hell."

Attorney Poulson said he doubted if Mrs. Van West would like had the case gone to trial and all the lurid details brought out. He said Velma may not have been able to stand the ordeal, either.

"I'm happy over the outcome," said Poulson. "It was the best thing to do after all the muck that has been brought out."

Prosecutor Paulin had no comment to make, asserting that what transpired in court spoke for itself.

End If Surprise

The sudden termination of the case was a surprise and Painesville was seething with speculation as to the reasons that prompted the state to accept the lesser plea. Velma had been indicted on the charge of murder in the first degree and had been tried by a jury and convicted she might possibly be sent to the electric chair. As it is now, she is eligible to parole after serving 10 years in the reformatory.

It was exactly three months ago today that 21-year-old Velma, then only 18 months married, brutally killed her husband, T. Edward West, son of a nationally-known nursewoman, in their homey bungalow at Perry, Ohio. She killed him in a "blind rage" when he refused to drive her to Cleveland to an all-girl bridge party at the home of Miss Mabel Young, a stenographer.

The frail blonde Velma weighs less than 110 pounds and how she was able to heat down her six-foot, 200-pound husband has been a subject of much discussion. Young West was a former football player and a splendid physical specimen. Yet the 110-pound Velma according to her own signed confession, struck him with a clawhammer and knocked him down four separate times.

The killing, she declared, was unpremeditated, yet, after it was over she quickly changed and washed off traces of the blood on her hands. Then she jumped into her green roadster and went to the bridge party at Cleveland.

TAX CUT POSSIBLE

So Says Coolidge But Warns That Congress Must Behave

Washington, March 6.—A moderate tax reduction is still possible this year provided Congress keeps a reasonably tight check-rein on expenditures, President Coolidge told callers at the White House today.

While Congress has thus far exceeded the budget estimates in some instances, the excess appropriations have not yet been sufficient to imperil tax reduction entirely, in Mr. Coolidge's opinion. It was pointed out, however, that food control, farm relief and the alien property appropriations still are to be considered in relation to possible tax cuts.

UNION PRESIDENT IS HELD
AFTER MINE DISTURBANCE

St. Clairsville, March 6.—Arthur V. Verrard, president of the Crabapple Miners Local Union, and four union sympathizers are under arrest here today charged with obstructing a public highway and looting to riot as the result of a disturbance at the Crabapple Mine last night. The men were to be arraigned today.

The arrests were made when Sheriff Hardesty was told that about 300 unemployed miners and women were blocking the road used by non-union workers in their return from the mine.

Endurance Flight Called When Wheel Goes Through Ice

Detroit, March 6.—Eddie Stinson, World War flyer and George Haldean, transatlantic aviator, failed to take off this morning in an attempt to establish a new endurance record when one wheel of their plane crashed through the ice of Lake St. Clair.

The present world endurance record is held by a German who started aloft 52 hours and 53 minutes.

$334.38 JUDGMENT ORDERED SET ASIDE

Judge Scofield Rules in Suit of Harvey Claypool Against Landon Brothers

Judgment for $334.38 taken against Emrick, Gur and Harry Landon, was set aside on an order issued by Judge Scofield in the Court of Common Pleas following filing a motion by the three who are defendants in a suit brought by Harvey Claypool against Landon Brothers, a partnership.

The ruling vacating the judgment was based on the grounds that these three defendants were not legally notified and also that they are not connected with the partnership.

They also showed that they did not sign the note on which judgment was taken.

The judgment stands against others named as defendants and they have been granted leave to file their answers at once.

Seeks Dismissal

Dismissal of the divorce suit brought by Ralph Kemmerly is asked by one wife, Dorothy E. Kemmerly, in an answer and cross petition filed in Court of Common Pleas today.

Mrs. Kemmerly says that on Jan. 17 her husband deserted her without cause. She admits that occasionally she had differences of opinion and minor quarrels but never serious enough to cause a separation.

Mr. and Mrs. Kemmerly were married on Aug. 24, 1920 and have two sons, aged six and four years.

Through her attorney, Homer E. Johnson, Mrs. Kemmerly asks for all money in addition to dismissal of her husband's suit.

Suit Dismissed

Suit of Sidney Chisnell against W. H. Hinkley, executor of the will of C. E. Dennis, an action for collection of an account, has been dismissed at costs of plaintiff.

The question of which company is liable for damage claims filed by employees injured at the time the local Erie Railroad Co. shops were being operated by the Railway Service Corporation is an interesting point brought up in Common Pleas Court here yesterday.

The point is raised in a suit for $100,000 damages brought against the Erie Railroad Co. by Howard L. Moore, a former mechanic's helper who seeks compensation for injuries alleged to have been sustained in an accident on March 1, 1927.

He was then employed at the Erie shops where the management was in charge of the Railway Service Corporation, an organization of local manufacturers operating the shops under contract.

He was injured, he states, when crushed by the crosshead of an engine which he was helping dismantle.

The suit, originally filed in Court of Common Pleas here on April 12, was later removed to United States District Court on the grounds of diversity of citizenship. Moore being a resident of Marion and the Erie offices being in another state.

Recently the federal judge remanded the suit back to the Marion County court and yesterday Moore, through his attorneys, filed an amended petition containing a clause relating to possible liability of the Public Service Corporation.

He requests that his right to recover from this company be recognized should the court find that the operating contract released the Erie Railroad Co. of responsibility.

Moore's attorneys are Mouser, Young & Mouser of this city and Payer, Minshall, Karch & Kerr of Cleveland.

Motion Overruled

Motion filed by the defendant, requesting the court to strike out a clause in the petition filed by Jesse Carvine in his damage suit against the Hocking Valley Railway Co., was overruled yesterday by Judge Scofield. The railway company was granted leave to plead by March 31.

Overrules Motion

Notice of the defendant to require increased security for costs was overruled yesterday by Judge Scofield in the suit of Jacob B. Rizer against J. B. Rizer and others. The plaintiff seeks to set aside a will in which he and the defendants are interested.

GETS HEAVY FINE

Eight Years in Prison and $5,000 for Transporting Stolen Car

Cleveland, March 6.—Joseph Ventimiglia, proprietor of a local restaurant, today stood sentenced to eight years in the Atlanta Federal Prison and fined $5,000, possibly the heaviest punishment ever imposed in this federal district, according to United States District Attorney A. E. Berens, for interstate transportation of a stolen automobile.

Ventimiglia was arrested by Federal Agents Paul Jones late yesterday after a long deliberation. 15 minutes found him guilty of the charge of transporting a stolen automobile from Cleveland to Pittsburgh where he sold it to a relative.

The defendant was, according to Assistant United States District Attorney Donald C. Van Dusen "the pivot about which revolved a large automobile ring working throughout northern Ohio and into Pennsylvania as far as Pittsburgh."

on opposite sides of the street. This plan will bring a light at practically every street intersection.

The changing of the lighting system, it was explained by President Murphy, is in keeping with a provision of the franchise granted in 1920 which provided that the five light standards were to be replaced by single lights within five years, it being assumed at that time, President Murphy said, that W. Center-st. would be repaired and widened within that period.

While the franchise did not provide what type of lights should be installed, it was the unanimous belief of the seven members of council who were present that while the change was being made, it would be policy to install a system that would be in keeping with the future growth of the city.

Abandon Old Light Plan

Councilman R. E. Prettyman, chairman of the finance committee, gave as his opinion that, while the city was spending approximately $100,000 to widen and repave W. Center-st., he thought it would be folly for the matter of a $1,000 a year to chopen on the lighting system.

A. H. Williams, of the finance committee, also expressed a preference for the larger lamp, saying he believed that the light street as being widened and repaved it would be policy to install a lighting system that would be in keeping with the project. The same opinion was expressed by Councilman J. A. Ritter, J. A. Wilkins, Grand Haldean, L. E. Starr and Ralph B. Good, Councilman Tom Mead of the Second Ward and Councilman J. H. Schneider of the Fourth Ward were not present.

A plan to install the 22 old standards on Garden, Campbell, Orchard and Oak-sts. was discussed. The plan, which provided for eight lights on each street, was abandoned, however, when it was decided to spend the $94 a month, which would have been the additional cost, on the new system on W. Center-st.

All More Standards

Mr. Van Deuse and Council that the company would store the standards, which are the property of the city, and agreed that at any time the city would wish to install them on any street, his company would bear the expense of installation. This agreement was included in the ordinance. The ordinance also provides that the extra cost of $80 a month for the new system will not become effective until the entire system is installed, which, according to Mr. Van Deuse, would be the latter part of July.

He also told Council that steel poles would be installed to replace the wood poles that are now being used in some cases as trolley wire poles, giving a uniform appearance.

Work of removing the standards on the north side of the street, which will be the first side to be paved, will start at once in order to permit the contractor to proceed with the building of the storm water and sanitary sewers. The new lights will not be installed, however, until after the curb has been set.

bribe for the imperial director of mines of China.

"The Chinese official declared on the witness stand that when the bonds had been pressed on him he refused them and so well did he acquit himself under the cross examination of counsel for Hoover and his associates," Warner added, "that the presiding judge concluded his discussion of the case with this splendid tribute to China:

Women Organize

"I think perhaps I ought to add one other observation, which is that, in the investigation before me of the transaction in question, it has not been shown that he was guilty of any breach of faith, or more than I can say for some of the other parties concerned."

Warner summed up his anti-Hoover attack with this observation: "So I can see no reason why the American people and particularly the great Republican party, which has followed the teachings of the founder of our country and the emancipator, Abraham Lincoln, should nominate for the presidency a man who had so conducted his business affairs while associated with and representing a British syndicate of 'promoters' that he might be denominated the 'Doherty and Sinclair of the Old World.'"

"We have in the great Republican party those men who for years have represented the highest ideal of American citizenship and while their accumulation of worldly wealth may be somewhat limited, the respect and confidence of their fellow citizens constitute a wealth unlimited."

Women attending the meeting elected the following officers: organizing a Marion County branch of the Ohio Council of Republican Women:

Mrs. Emma Voorhes, president; Miss Mary Leonard, first vice president; Mrs. Ethel Neal, second vice president; Mrs. B. D. Osborn, recording secretary; Mrs. Lorin J. Myers, corresponding secretary; Miss Lillian Plack, treasurer.

Censorship Law with Teeth.

The run of "Mays," which has been playing to packed houses at the Comedy theater in New York City, came to an end Saturday night. It proved offensive to the authorities, and, despite every effort to influence District Attorney Banton, he refused to recede from his decision to close the play.

The Simon Gatillon drama was the first to be punished under the new censorship law, which is said to operate against isolated actions and lines in a play. The scope of the law, according to the New York papers, is so broad and thus far indeterminate that the closing incident of Saturday night has caused managers up and down Broadway to scrutinize play scripts with a more careful eye. One of the officials of the Actor-Managers, Inc., is quoted as having remarked, apropos of the "Mays" closing: "Why, under its provisions, a revival of 'Camille' would be a hazardous proceeding."

Evidently the "Mays" closing has caused New York producers and house managers to pause and think, and it may be just as well that they should. For a year or two past, the New York stage has wallowed in its filth. Some of its offerings in word and action have been vile beyond all possible excuse. New York producers seemingly looked upon themselves as above and beyond the law. District Attorney Banton, we take it, at last has a law with some very serviceable teeth upon which to rely, and it is to be hoped that he will employ it until filthy suggestion and vile utterances are remarkable for their absence from the stage productions of the metropolis. When producers and house managers appreciate that the law demands decency in stage offerings, decency will obtain.

We are frank to say that we do not know in what particular way "Mays" offended. That it did offend is manifest, but we are not considering here the possible faults of "Mays," of which we know nothing, but the faults of certain recent New York productions of which we do know, plays which can appeal only to debauched minds.

Twice the Size of Any Extant.

It is now definitely established that the length of the mighty span of the Hudson river bridge to connect New York City with New Jersey will be double that of its nearest rivals. Saturday announcement was made by the Port of New York Authority that the borings of its engineers had found a foundation of solid rock within the pierhead line on the New Jersey side established by the war department which is not more than 100 feet below the water level. Thus it is known that the central span will be 2,500 feet between the two enormous towers over which the great cables will be run. This will make it twice as long as the longest suspension bridge span in existence—that across the Delaware river at Philadelphia, built in 1926—and almost 2,000 feet longer than the 1,595-foot span of the Brooklyn bridge.

Each of the supporting towers will be 210 by sixty-five feet at the base and will taper slightly toward the top, reaching a height of 625 feet. This unusual height was demanded that the bridge might in no way impede river traffic. As it is, the bridge will not at all impede the water flow, and the central span will clear the water level by 253 feet. It is inconceivable that any vessel of the future will be unable to pass under a bridge that distance above the surface of the water.

The design of the bridge originally called for two decks, but to expedite its opening it will be constructed for the present with but one deck. The cost, as now planned, will be $50,000,000, and the second deck, when added, will cost $15,000,000 more.

The Port Authority, in its announcement, reported that more than usual attention had been paid to the aesthetic side of the bridge construction, "not only because of the monumental size and conspicuous location of the bridge, but because it will be built to last for generations and should be handed down to posterity as a truly monumental structure."

"The cables pass over the towers and hang gracefully unencumbered by a network of bracing and are securely anchored at their ends to a solid mass of bedrock on the one side and to a massive block of masonry, founded on rock on the other," the report says. "The towers are plain and massive pillars and deliver their enormous loads to foundations on solid bedrock."

It was but a few weeks ago that we spoke in these columns on the present-day tendency toward bigness—the tendency toward bigness of financial, industrial and commercial combinations, toward bigness in our surface and undersea vessels, bigness in our rail motive power, bigness in our electrical units and bigness in almost innumerable other lines. Here we have another illustration of this trend. The largest suspension bridge span in existence was opened to traffic in 1926, and now, in less than two years, the work of excavating for the foundation and constructing the approaches for a bridge with twice the Delaware river bridge's span is already under way.

Ever since coming upon the remark of Lord Dewart, that some men electrify their audiences while others gas them, we've had a suspicion that he was over here during some presidential campaign.

Premier Mussolini, speaking as minister of war, felicitates the Italian army over the fact that it has all the glory of maintaining the nation's prestige, but possibly the army would be just as well satisfied with a little less glory and a little more cash.

Across-Country Race Starts.

For the race of approximately 3,000 miles across the country to New York City, 274 runners and walkers toed the line in Los Angeles, Sunday. There were starters from many climes, from almost every land, of almost every race color—white men, black men, yellow men, red men. The one to make the best time is to get $25,000. The runner-up will get $10,000; the third man, $5,000; the fourth man, $2,500, and the next six, $1,000 each.

That's as much as the wires told us yesterday. That's as much as we have seen in print. It may be that the press associations are in a conspiracy to suppress any advertising phase of the contest. It may be that the publicity man of the event is holding back some of his dope. It may be that announcement has been made and escaped our attention. No matter. By the time the race is finished, we expect to know whose shoes made victory possible for the winner, what foot-ease he used, the tablets he took, the gum he chewed, the liniment he applied while nobody was looking and the particular tonic upon which he relied to build up his vitality to the highest degree. We may be wrong, but right or wrong in this regard, there's one thing of which we are assured: the promoter will get his bit. That's the one catch in events of the kind. What the public will get out of it is another matter.

Republican National Committeeman Charles Dewey Hillea has become so wedded to the cry, "Draft Coolidge," that he's liable to get it into his head pretty soon that the Fess copyright on the slogan is bogus.

Of course, the money sent by soviet Russia to India to finance the recent railway strike there might have ameliorated much misery and suffering at home, but, on the other hand, the bolsheviks have never been greatly concerned about misery and suffering in Russia, so long as they were living on the fat of the land.

Mayor Jimmy Walker says he will do anything but wear tight, possibly figuring that nobody will have the heart to put him to a test so cruel and unusual as running from a camera.

The public debt of the United States was reduced $99,407,477 in February, making a reduction of $1,201,901,253 during the past twelve months and $8,640,049,094 since the war-time peak of $26,596,701,648, August 31, 1919. Honestly, we are beginning to loathe the view that maybe Mr. Mellon has administered the finances of the country almost as well as some of his critics in congress, experienced in criticism, but inexperienced in matters of finance, could possibly have handled them.

TIME TO DO SOME BOMBING.

Curing Baby's Ills.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

When a baby develops highly-colored urine, or urine of strong odor, it should create the suspicion that insufficient water is being given. The body wastes cannot be dissolved and cared for as they should be without an abundance of this fluid. Constipation is a common symptom in infants. It is likely to be made much worse by the failure to give lots of water.

The great cause for constipation in a baby, as in an adult, is improper feeding. The diet may not contain enough sugar. Or there may be too much fat. Or there may be another cause, overfeeding. Any of these factors plays a part in producing constipation.

Wrong feeding is responsible for all manner of digestive symptoms. It is not uncommon for some mothers to give the breast every time the baby is fretful. Such practice is fatal to the infant's welfare because it upsets the digestion. One of the symptoms which may result is constipation. It is a mistake to permit constipation to continue. If it does, the bowel gradually dilates. It loses elasticity and normal muscular action. In the nature of things, this condition will make the constipation permanent.

It is a curse to anybody, infant or adult, to permit the rectum to become a slave to cathartics and other drugs. The natural means of promoting bowel action are far better. D. and plenty of water should be all the treatment and prevention needed.

In extreme cases, as I have said recently about the constipation of adults, mineral oil may be given. It is not absorbed; it acts merely to lubricate the bowel. This remedy is better than drugs. But proper feeding is better still.

When there is an actual accumulation in the lower bowels, it may be necessary to give enemias of soap and water. But if the baby is properly fed it will not need to be fussed over until it is a nervous wreck. It is much wiser to avoid the necessity for mechanical treatment.

Every case must be studied on its merits, but there is no doubt that right feeding will do away with the need of drugs in overcoming constipation. Fruit juices, tomato or prune juice, as well as quantities of water will help a lot.

Sometimes a bottle-fed baby will thrive if the milk supply is changed. The milk from another cow may serve a better welfare of the child. But whatever you do, do not begin the practice of giving laxatives or mild cathartics. Never depend on your own knowledge when it comes to giving drugs. This is your doctor's job.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

M. J. D. Q.—I have too many bloodlets and wish to decrease them. What should I do? Have been advised by one doctor to drink water with my food. What would you suggest?

A.—Follow your doctor's advice. This is nothing abnormal and nothing to be alarmed about.

B. M. A. Q.—I can not stand fresh air. Even a change from one room to another causes severe coughing spells. Have had special throat treatment which fails to relieve me.

A.—Consult a nose and throat specialist for examination.

M. K. R. Q.—What treatment do you suggest for pharyngitis and what will clear up a coated tongue?

A.—A soothing spray should be helpful until your doctor prescribes for you. A coated tongue is usually due to constipation or to an intestinal disorder. Watch the diet and keep the system clear. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

E. F. Q.—What kind of a physician should a person suffering from mental depression, brought on by an introspective condition, consult? I am powerless to combat it; is this a physical or mental condition? What would you advise?

A.—My advice would be to see a neurologist with a view to getting at the underlying cause of trouble. It is of course possible that a physical condition is at the source. Your doctor will advise you after examination.—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Because her bridge partner played the wrong card twice a Michigan woman committed murder and got life imprisonment. That's only an extreme example of a pretty common tendency—the tendency for many of us to take our recreation with deadly seriousness. Have you not often heard one man say of another: "He's a fine fellow, but I hate to play poker with him, or I don't like to play golf with him, or he's the nastiest fellow at tennis I ever saw."

A man who can not take his games as games should be taken is not "right." He has a very definite weakness. He may appear to be O. K. in other respects—but if you will look closely enough you will find he isn't. A man who takes his games too seriously is a child, no matter if he is past seventy.

A baby was born recently in Indiana without arms or legs. What a "moral sentiment" will keep this unfortunate child alive until it dies a natural death. Nothing could be more cruel than to introduce a child thus handicapped into the struggles of this world. And yet society will do it because we have not reached the stage wherein thinking rules instead of sentiment. Some day we will have attained the courage and the sense to treat such cases as fully civilized human beings would treat them.

In Washington you can meet George Pitt, record Rotarian. In fifteen years Pitt has raised but four luncheons. He has eaten 2,000 chicken croquettes which have cost him about $1,200, not counting his hat check money. He has used up 3,000 business hours. In the eyes of many luncheon club experts here he is a perfect Rotarian, a perfect Exchangeite or a perfect Kiwanite. They do not ask that this has really done with his 2,000 chicken croquettes and his 8,000 perfectly good business hours.

The fact is that attendance at luncheons is much overemphasized in luncheon clubs. That's why the accent is too often on the luncheon. Kiwanis is a spirit, it is Exchange. So is Rotary. It is an ideal toward which men can work singly and co-operatively. Missing but four luncheons in fifteen years may mean much or it may mean nothing.

You can be pretty sure that the man who is around asking for sympathy will make a bad use of it.

THE VANISHING ELEPHANT.

It must be a fascinating experience to think in millions of years. Henry Fairfield Osborn, president of the American Museum of Natural History, looks at the vanishing wild life of Africa and remarks that "a million years ago the entire world, including every continent, was filled with these glorious animals which it had taken millions of years to create." Most of us, when we see an elephant, see only a towering beast. Mr. Osborn, apparently, looks upon an elephant and sees a panorama of 10,000,000 years. A little animal, barely a yard high, without as yet the tusks or the proboscis which spells elephant to most of us, hovers in his vision along the river sides of north Africa, and a whole train of its descendants, marching across the continents through the millenniums, connect that little animal with the pachyderms of today.

Photographs of elephant herds seem to give reassurance that there will always be plenty of elephants to delight the children at the zoo. But it does not require even a paleontological mind to doubt it. Africa is changing in our generation. Despite the great Parc National Albert which the Belgian government has established in equatorial Africa, it will not be many decades before the fat gorilla is as extinct as the little quagga that once trod in vast herds across South Africa. Carl Akeley, collecting specimens for the magnificent African hall of the American museum, noted in 1926 that the abundance of animal life which had delighted him two decades earlier was already a thing of the past. Areas once rich in game were becoming lifeless deserts or civilized and uninteresting. Never since the first spark of life, not even in the millennia when glaciers were crushing out life or when the giant dinosaurs were being extinguished from the face of the earth, have whole species been wiped out with the ruthless speed of this transformation. "To Africa alone," as Mr. Osborn points out in the current issue of "Natural History," organ of his museum, "there survive the offspring of 30,000,000 years of mammalian evolution." And in Africa they are disappearing. A few more decades, and unless foresight prevents, the motion pictures and the museums will have all that is left.—New York Herald Tribune.

The Joy of Age.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

Some surprise has been expressed that so many elderly people are enrolled in the Columbia university law study division. Out of 1,500 men and women enrolled, five are more than seventy-five years of age, sixteen are above seventy, and more than 1,300 are above forty, or which 465 have reached fifty years.

But this is exactly as it ought to be. The mind is the lasting part of man. It never fails as long as the bodily functions hold out. Keep its tools in good condition and it will continue to work with increasing effectiveness as long as life lasts. Man is the only animal who led a vain life, because he is the only one who possesses what may be called a mind. The gleams of intelligence in the lower creatures are not of the creative order. Those animals are not inventive, i. e., not "finders out," or contrivers of new combinations and new situations. Through geological ages they continue to follow the original rut, growing the same way, acting and living the same way. Man goes ahead. Brilliant as some ancient civilizations were, that of today is far in advance of them.

And in the human race the elderly do not cease to advance, though most of the new things may originate with the young. Even so, those who are older wish, generally, to keep in the current of fresher events and ideas. That explains, if any explanation is needed, why men and women past seventy-five years enroll themselves in university extension and home study courses. They are not in the mind of the matter for intellectual things, while its negative capacity and discriminative power increase with age.

The whole lifetime should be regarded as a post-graduate course by those who count themselves as "educated." Time can always be found for at least a little study, and the habit of home study—whether guided by advice from a university or self-guided—soon makes it a recreation as delightful as any that life affords.

The croakers who talk about men being fit only to pass away from this earthly scene after reaching the age of fifty, are at the same time slanders of their race and despisers of their own birthright. Intellectually, a man should be nearer his zenith at seventy-five than at forty. If he is not, it is the material part of him that is at fault. It is the machine, but not the spirit behind the machine, that deteriorates. Therefore, one should take care of his bodily vigor not for the sake of prolonging mere sensual enjoyment, but for the sake of reserving a long, serene, brightly glowing evening for the euthanasia of his mental powers.

One is tempted to think of the human mind as an isolated fragment of intelligence that has got itself attached to a material body, as the wandering electrons of Milliken's celebrated experiment are caught upon floating droplets of oil mist suspended between electrified plates. The electron is the thing, not the particle of atomized mist, and so is the mind and not the body the thing in the human combination.

"We can not describe," said Emerson in one of his lectures, "the natural history of the soul, but we know that it is divine. I can not tell if these wonderful qualities which house today in this mortal frame shall ever reassemble in equal activity in a similar frame, or whether they have before had a natural history like that of this body you see before you; but this one thing I know, that these qualities did not now begin to exist, can not be sick with my sickness, nor buried in any grave; but that they circulate through the universe. Before the world was they were."—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

Paris as McIntyre Sees It.

BY O. O. MINTYRE.

Paris, March 6.—The tiny handbag shops, great shops for a dozen blocks or more along the Rue de Rivoli, are an ever-changing and constant delight for the ladies. Almost the entire stocks are in glittering windows, and there is room for no more than a half dozen customers in the largest shop.

The clerks speak English with a decided British accent, but the venerable French mammas and papas with shoulder shaws preside at the cube-like brass-tipped cashiers' racks. No clerk has ever been able successfully to tap the till in France. And there are few cash registers in small shops.

Along the Rue de Rivoli the appeal is almost entirely for feminine vanities—necklaces, rings, bracelets, gloves, rhinestone do-dads, watches, vanity cases, perfumes, cosmetics, cigarette holders, swaggar sticks and such. Clerks escort customers to the sidewalk for the final blow.

The sidewalk is in fantastic mosaic designs, and a portion overhead protects pedestrians from the elements. The famous Rumble-may's tea-room is in the mid-center of the promenade. In the shadows of the portico supports lurk those conscienceless guides who whisper of the Paris depravities, there being several.

Then there are the sidewalk "pitch men"—the one-armed, one-fingered fellow whose face resembles a ball of hair and who links your caricature with a few lightning strokes; the puppy man who talks in the center of a circular platform filled with black French good news; the phenologist in his portable stand, mail sellers and vendors of pornographic books.

At noon some shopkeepers on the Rue de Rivoli close up, carrying the door handles with them, and go to the two-hour luncheon. The seasoned Parisian always shops along this center immediately after lunch. He knows the proprietors are slightly mellow with luncheon wine, and better bargains are likely.

Americans who do not dicker are missing the real delight of shopping. The Frenchman has a zest for bargaining. His first price is just a "feeler," and if you accept it he suffers actual disappointment, but he will, of course, accept your money. But they do that all over the world, I suppose.

Motor fumes are killing the famed chestnut trees that bloom in the spring (tra-la) along the Parisian boulevards, and nothing can be done. Expert tree surgeons say they have done their very best. The trees are sacred and to lose them is a calamity here.

The aged beau in Paris is ever amusing. He clicks up his beard, butters his hair, preen his beard and appears for a promenade, quite the perfumed dandy, every afternoon on the Champs Elysees. His flirtatious conquests are harmless, but amusing. He merely loves his ladies. I saw one this afternoon near seven with the rickets or rickets, carrying off with the ardor of a nineteen-year-old.

And young hand-holding lovers still promenade in the cold and leafless Bois. There is nothing private about Paris petting. The young cling to be belief love is a glorious thing for the whole world to look upon. They will stop, stary-eyed, in a crowd, to embrace, a bus-stop osculation is as casual as breathing. But there is no good excuse for men kissing each other in public.

In the flower market back of the Madeleine today I saw a Chinese in the soldierly uniform of France, and to add to the incongruity he was talking English with an Oxonian accent.

It appears I incurred the official displeasure of a gendarme in Rue Florentine today by absent-mindedly permitting my dog to soil his trousers leg while waiting to cross the street. His dignity was offended, and he did a sort of Indian dance of protest with a gus of zippy explosives, while the usual crowd collected. And he kept up his harangue until I walked away. As though I cared.

My favorite Paris entertainment has vanished. It was a robin with a wooden leg trained by a kindly little old man to perform all sorts of tricks for promenaders in the Tuilleries garden. No one seems to know who has become of them.—Copyright, 1928, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

ANNUAL REPORT OF
LIBRARY PRESENTEDCirculation for 1927 Probably Largest on Record, It Is Declared

The annual report of the City Library, showing that increase in book circulation during 1927 was probably the largest on record, was received by the Board of Education at its monthly meeting, held in the office of J. H. Mason, superintendent of schools, yesterday afternoon.

The total library circulation last year was 76,167, an increase of 14,114 over 1926. The report, details of which were published several weeks ago, covered all branches of library operation and also included a financial statement.

Receipts for the year totaled $12,297.51, covering the following items: taxes, $11,855.23; interest on deposits, $83.75; membership fees, $18.25; fines, etc., $284.31; miscellaneous, $23.97. Expenditures amounting to $10, were as follows: books, $1,849.29; periodicals, $217.99; binding, $297.51; salaries, library service, $1,072.49; salaries, library service, $1,072.49; last and light, $894.61; permanent improvements, $713.71; miscellaneous, $116.47.

Balance on Hand
Accompanying the report was a letter from the library board, signed by the president, S. H. DeLong. It read, in part, as follows:

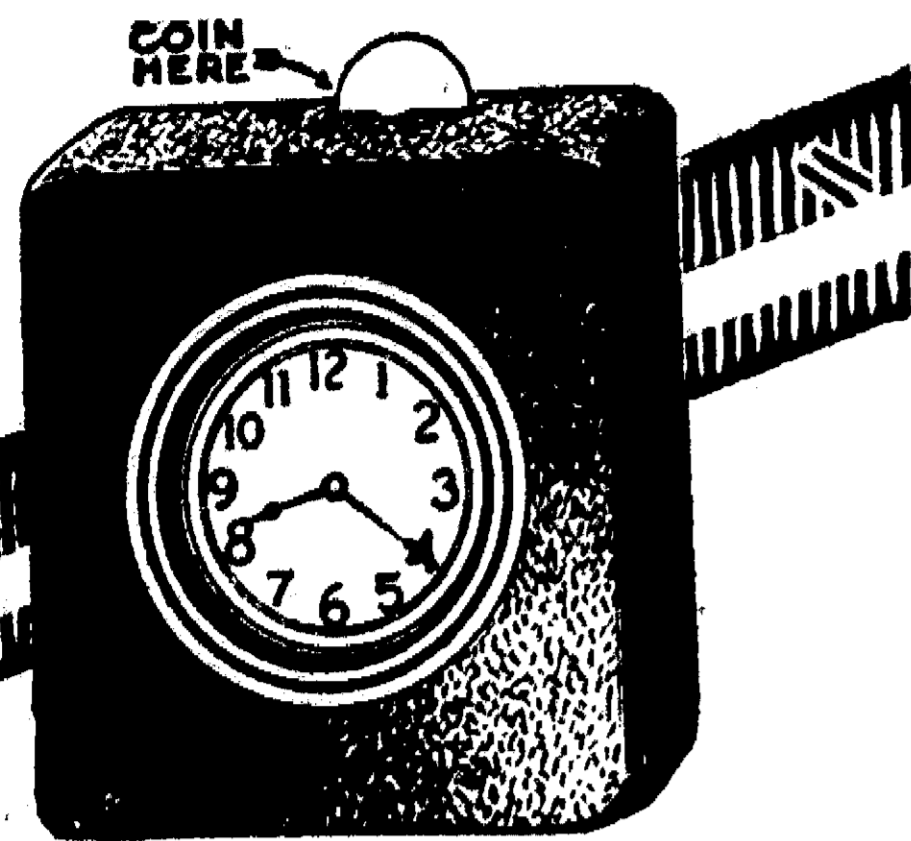

"The board especially wishes to express to your honorable body its sincere appreciation of the addition of $2,834.06 to the appropriation for 1927. It is this increase which has enabled us to purchase some of the books which we have needed to supply the demands of the public. We have, by careful management, a balance in our fund Jan. 1, 1928, which will enable us to redecorate the library and install new fixtures and a steel bookstack, as there has been a congestion of book space for some time."

"The per capita cost (tax funds) for library service to adults and children in 1927 was 23.4 cents, a figure nearly seven-fifths less than the American Library Association standard of 81 per cent, according to the statistics included in the report of the library."

Approves Bonds
In addition to approving and filing the library report, the Board of Education approved the bonds of its clerk, Hector S. Young, and of the six local banks which are depositories of school funds.

Young's bond is for $50,000 and the same amount of surety is furnished by five of the banks. The Marion National Bank's bond is $100,000, that amount being fixed because of this bank having the school's main checking account. The other depositories are the Marion County, Valley, West Side and Marion Savings Banks and the National City Bank and Trust Co.

Bonds of the clerk and the depositories were signed by local citizens as sureties.

Delighted With Concert of Rollin Pease, BaritoneProgram One of Most Pleasing as Well as Entertaining Sponsored by Members of Marion Canto Club;
Singers Excell Their Past Efforts

Rollin Pease, baritone, proved himself past master in the art of entertaining when he was heard as guest artist with members of the Canto Club in the eighth Marion concert last night in The Star Auditorium. An audience of more than 600 persons attended the concert which was one of the most pleasing as well as entertaining programs sponsored by members of the club.

Mr. Pease will be remembered by music lovers here not alone for his magnificent voice and the splendid interpretations of his numbers but also for the delightfully informal talk with which he introduced the numbers of his group and their composers. He chose his program with variations rather than sameness, in keeping with his belief that it is impossible to keep in the same mood for any great length of time.

Richness of tone, power and artistry were displayed by Mr. Pease in his presentation of the concluding number of his first group, which was Dudley Buck's "Fear Not, O Israel," while in direct contrast, and what is another might seem to touch on the ridiculous, but cleverly and most entertainingly interpreted in a musical reading, "Casey at the Bat," the concluding number of his second group.

His third group included three delightful numbers by John Alden Carpenter and he concluded his concert with four war songs, including the popular "Long Boy," sung during the World War. Mr. Pease also sang with members of the Canto Club the concluding number of the program, "A Mighty Vulcan," hymn of Pittsburgh, by Charles Wakefield Cadman in which he took the solo part.

Mr. Pease was assisted in his numbers by George Leland Nichols, of the piano department of piano, Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, who is an accompanist of rare ability and whose playing added immeasurably to the evening's entertainment.

Canto Club's Numbers
Members of the Canto Club, whose concerts have always proved a pleasurable experience in musical presentations in the city, excelled in their numbers, and opened the evening's concert with "The Watchers," and "A Holy One," Cologne Choral, 1923, and four folk songs, "Santa Lucia," "Forget-me-not," "How Can I Leave Thee," and "March of Men of Harlech," the latter being arranged by E. C. Carls, under whose able direction the chorus was presented. Particularly pleasing was the second number of the concluding group of the program, "This is the Moon of Roses," Victor Harris, which the club sang unaccompanied. Their other numbers were "A Hong Kong Romance," Henry K. Hadley, "Alexander," Herbert Brower, "Volga Boat Song," and "A Mighty Vulcan," Cadman. John Lacey sang with fluency and command, the solo parts in the choral number at the opening of the program. Mrs. Helen Zuck Lacey, club accompanist, played the accompaniment.Fifth Anniversary Planned
Mr. Pease's four groups included "Sunset," Sydney Lanier, "Cradle Lullaby," Rudyard Kipling, "Fear Not, O Israel," Dudley Buck; "Forget-me-not," Robert Browning, "Cradle Song," Howard Widdowson and "Casey at the Bat," Edward Thayer, Sidney Homer; "Green River," Lord Alfred Douglas and "Don't Care," Dorsetshire ballad, John Alden Carpenter; "Pipes of Gordon's Men," Scott Douglas, William M. Hammond, "Time Enough," Julius Stinde, Ethelbert Nevin, "Long Boy," War Gang Song and "The Road to Vaux," Katherine Rankin, Isaac Van Grove. His encore numbers were "Infelice," from the opera "Ernani," Verdi and "The Road to Mandalay," Oley Speaks.

Members of the club will be heard in their fifth anniversary club concert May 7.

Pease, who was arrested on an affidavit filed by Captain F. E. Tabler, of the Erie police, in pleading guilty to the charge said he had no coal and that his baby was sick. He was given a fine of $25 and costs which was suspended on condition that he pay for the coal taken.

Isn't Three Years A Long Time to Hold The Brakes on Progress?

Isn't three years a long time to hold the brakes on progress? The people of Marion were first asked to grant the gas company a higher rate for gas in July 1924. The need for a better gas supply was clearly apparent and the company having acquired large acreage in Cambridge gas fields asked Marion to help augment her own gas supply by granting a slight increase in rate to aid the company in the then projected lines, stations and wells necessary to accomplish that purpose.

The citizenship of Marion generally approved that proposal, but the then city solicitor of Marion intervened at Columbus in the hearings before the Public Utilities Commission and prevented acceptance. And so the proposed lines to the Cambridge and other fields could not be laid and these fields were developed by other gas companies, and the gas rate case went on and is still unsettled. New conditions have come, not then foreseen, but every development has only served to more greatly strengthen the justice of the company's request, and the urgent need for a prompt settlement of the gas rate generally, and particularly as part and parcel of the solution of permanent gas fuel supply for Marion.

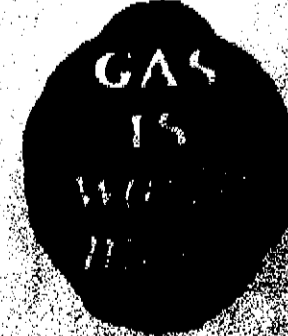

Your Gas Company has patiently tried to negotiate this matter but has been put off and the case dragged out before the City council and the Public Utilities Commission while political ends were served. Councilmen are anxious to do the will of the people and are disposed fairly toward the company's proposition. What they want is some appearance of public support to a settlement. Why shouldn't the men of Marion dispose of the business of Marion?

The Gas Company only asks what is fair and right. It appeals to the People of Marion for the same square deal that the customers of the Company have a right to expect and the Company positively assures. The Company asks only $1.00 for the first 500 cubic feet or any part thereof and 60c net per thousand cubic feet thereafter.

Forty-six other cities and towns served by this company are paying such a rate. The average for the United States is $1.22 per thousand cubic feet and the average heat unit value is 160 heat units compared with 1040 heat unit gas supplied Marion.

Will you give your Gas Company a chance to grow so that it can help Marion grow? The rate asked means so little to the individual but is vital to the Company. Will you support justice and fairness?

SPORTS LETTER-BOX

Managing Editor, Marion Star.
Dear Sir:

After reading your sports note in Saturday's Star, I wish to state that my reason for not signing my name to my first letter was not due to lack of courage but to the fact that I did not expect you to publish it.

My letter is as follows and you may publish it if you wish:

I did not like the attitude your Sports Editor showed towards the last Eagle Boxing Match. I have heard comments from several of the fans and they thought, as I do, that the fight was well worth the price asked.

Marion's Boxing Commission thought Referee Abel capable of managing the bout and surely they should be more able to judge than the Sports Editor. I do not know whether the Sports Editor has any special antagonism towards the Eagles or not, but I do know that such articles are ruinous to good clean sports in Marion.

Having witnessed several fights in larger cities than Marion, and paying double the amount of the Eagles' show, I think the Sports Editor has done the Eagles a grave injustice.

Respectfully,
(Signed) R. H. (Pat) Patterson.
R. F. D. No. 3, Marion, Ohio.

Hugh Duffy, the new baseball coach at Boston College, is best remembered for his peerless batting in the nineties and still retains a modern batting mark of .438 made in 1894 and never equalled or surpassed. Duffy was a factor in the winning of four championships by the Boston Nationals from 1893 to 1898.

This Business of Buying Tires

Rival tire claims today are deafening. Hear the yell—"bargain," "discount," "service," "guarantee"—all superlatives.

Competition has made better tires. But in comparing tires, the buyer must consider one big, significant, unchallenged fact:

More People Buy Goodyear Tires Than Any Other Kind

To hold this popularity, Goodyear has made and sold far more tires than any other manufacturer for ten years.

Goodyear tires are made by the greatest manufacturer of rubber—backed by worldwide service of the highest character. This means much to the wise buyer.

Over 100,000,000 Goodyear tires have been sold. 100,000,000 buyers can't be wrong.

HIS PRICE SOARED FROM $85 TO $123,000 QUICK

CHALMERS CISELL

EYES of the baseball world this spring are glued on the little form of a young athlete rejoicing in the rather monastic cognomen of Chalmers Cissell. He's the new shortstop of the Chicago White Sox.

His precious carcass has just been insured for a sum which the Windy City press agent assures is not one cent less than a mere $100,000. And you can well be sure that.

It wasn't so long ago that the Des Moines club of the Western League, paid $85 to the United States Army for Mr. Cissell's release from kitchen police, drill and other military exercises.

And, be it known, when the White Sox took title to the very same Chalmers Cissell, the young gent set them back the sum of $123,000, believed to be the record price ever paid for any ballplayer.

Rising Market
To fill in the gap between the $85 and $123,000 we might chronicle the fact that Des Moines sold Cissell to the Portland club of the Pacific Coast for $15,000 — so everybody made a nice profit on the deal except the Sox, and that, of course, remains to be seen.

The actual cash paid was $75,000 but the White Sox included four players in the deal. One was Pitcher Bert Cole, who cost Chicago $35,000. Another was Outfielder Ike Boone, who cost $3,000. Two others, each to cost $4,000, are to be added.

Cissell scarcely can remember when he did not play ball. He is only 24. He was born in Perryville, Mo.

He joined the cavalry when he tired of learning the caddy trade in St. Louis.

He was sent to Fort Des Moines, near Des Moines, Ia. And it was there that he attracted the attention of the Des Moines Club, which obtained his discharge.

He was used as utility felder for a few weeks and then was installed as regular shortstop, leading the Western League short felders in averages and hitting .345. Then Portland bought him for $13,000.

During 1927 on the Coast Cissell batted .328.

The youngster weighs 160 pounds and stands 5 feet 10½ inches. He bats right handed.

Breaks Record
In purchasing Cissell for $123,000 the Sox paid $8,000 more than they did for Willie Kamm.

PLAN IMPROVEMENT
When completed a little more than two years ago at a cost of $2,000,000 the plant of the Lincoln Fields Jockey Club near Chicago was considered one of the finest in America. Now it is planned to spend an additional half-million dollars in further improvements before the beginning of the racing season next Spring.

Cheese was the favorite game of the Vikings; it was compulsory.

WISCONSIN QUINTET LOSES TO MICHIGAN

Purdue Tightens Grip on Big Ten Race with Iowa Win

Chicago, March 6.—Michigan did it. And how!

In their most vicious mood of the season, the Wolverine wheelers tore into Wisconsin at Ann Arbor last night and when the bone-snapping contest was over the Badgers had lost their last chance to win or tie the Big Ten Conference basketball race.

The Wolverines did it, Ann Arbor. The score was 42 to 19.

But that was only part of the news. Over at Lafayette, Ind., Purdue was tightening its grip on the top rung by beating Iowa, 44 to 28. At the same hour, out in Evanston, Northwestern was clinching third place with a victory over Ohio State, 43 to 21.

Last night's results tossed Wisconsin back into fourth place, put Northwestern in undisputed possession of third, and left Purdue and Indiana in a deadlock for the lead. Each of the Hoosier teams has won nine games and lost two.

Only three games remain on the schedule. Indiana plays its final against Illinois at Urbana tonight, and Wisconsin and Illinois make their last stand on the same floor Friday evening. Minnesota and Purdue close the season Saturday night at Lafayette.

SETS RECORD
Albert Chenney Scores 38 Shots in Y. M. C. A. Tourney

A new record in Junior foul shooting has been set by Albert Chenney who scored a total of 38 out of a possible 45 on the Y. M. C. A. floor. The previous record was set at 37 out of 45.

Other scores are: Donald McAninch, 19; William Foster, 18; Reggy Curt, 19; Walter Russo, 16; John Tibbault, 9; Claire Jacoby, 20; William Adams, 54; James Jobe, 13; James Fellbaum, 23; Jack Ling, 21; Ralph Chamberlain, 21; Richard Morgan, 32; Wilbur Click, 21.

No other college has a swimming record approaching that of Yale, which has won 15 championships and tied one since the Intercollegiate Swimming Association came into existence 21 years ago.

This is the fourth of a series of articles by Frank G. Menke which reveal the inner workings of the book-making game and which are intended to show players why it is impossible for constant gamblers to beat the races. (Editor's Note)

THE real delight of a "handbook" man's life is the "parlay sucker"; the most pitiful species of the "sucker" tribe since Barium made 'em famous. For all those who try to beat the race through the medium of the "handbook," none is so easy and luscious a prey as the "parlay" boob.

For when one of them—or a group—fall into the lap of a "handbook" man, it means that every day he is reasonably certain of taking their pawns and using them to roll up vast profits for himself—without the chance of loss for himself. And that, like all the other instances, is due to the rule of the "handbook" man that he will not pay off on parlays at a rate of higher than 50 to 1 on horses at pari-mutuel tracks and no more than 40 to 1 on the horse running around the New York oval.

When a man makes a "parlay," it means he is playing a combination; that his winnings, plus the original stake, pyramid from one horse to the next, and that all must win—or finish in the positions he names—or the entire bet is lost. For instance: if he plays a three horse win "parlay" and two horses win, but the third loses, the entire bet is lost.

That's Just the Reason
It needs only a bit of shrewd calculating on the part of the "handbook" man and the use of an agent at the track for him to take a collection of one or more, make a handsome profit—all because of his limit rules.

If the "handbook" man paid the player the exact sum each successful parlay netted—but, ah, he does not. And that's why the "sucker" gets poorer and the "handbook" man dwells in a mansion and gets all bruised up bumping into his army of high-salaried servants. Only a short time ago, during the final 1927 Kentucky race meeting at Lexington, a "parlay sucker" meanwhile I won $1,750 on that race, and thus had picked up a total of $2,520 manipulating the sucker's $10. The next day I paid him his $319 and lost $2,201 for myself. Not so daisy-chin!

New York, March 6—Strong and aggressive buying of the motor and steel stocks continued in the New York market today. In the former group the spotlight was absorbed by a few of the low-priced shares which since last Friday have been pushed into the background by General Motors' speculative forework. The pool specialists rose vigorously under the lead of Radio and International Nickel, but the balance of the market was quiet and featureless.

A vigorous advance in Hudson
Chrysler, Hupp, Studebaker, Nash and Pack Trucks emphasized the strong market position of the leading automobile shares. Whether today's buying represented only the squeezing of a badly trapped short interest, or new accumulation by powerful financial interests in and out of Wall Street, it placed the automobile industry in a very favorable light, from an investment standpoint. All the makers of popular cars are believed to have reaped a substantial harvest through the inability of the Ford plants to turn out their product as expected, and new orders are flowing in to General Motors, Willys and others from those who are unwilling to wait for Ford deliveries.

After a moderate slump on profit-taking, General Motors forced ahead to a new high price level at 148 1/2.
Packard was bought in large volume around 65, up 2 1/2, Hudson at 89, up 1 1/4, Nash at 89 and Hupp at 42.
Radio Corporation returned to par after having slumped in the last week, up to 85 3/4, and International Nickel at 80 completed a recovery of 13 points.
A block of 15,000 shares of Radio sold at 99, up 2 1/2 points from the previous close.

SAYS BLOW DID NOT CAUSE ERWIN DEATH

Investigation of Woman's Story Closed by Police and Prosecutor

That the blow he received on the head at the hands of Fred Ames, who is now being held in the Upper Sandusky Jail on a charge of robbery, if he received a blow, played no part in the death of Emmett Erwin, who was found dead in a rooming house on W. Center-st. Jan. 7, was the decision reached today by Chief of Police Thompson and Prosecuting Attorney Frank Weidenmann, following an extensive investigation. The inquiry was instigated by a statement of Mrs. Fada Fonnau of near Upper Sandusky that the two men had engaged in a fight two days before Erwin's death, and that Erwin was struck over the head with a gun.

The investigation made by the police revealed that Erwin was in the city the day before he was found dead and that he had been drinking. Chief Thompson said. He was out of one room on the West side because of his condition and it is the belief of the police that under the influence of liquor, he had gone to his room, and after lighting the gas in the stove, lay down on the floor in front of the stove.

Chief of Police Thompson said this morning that he did not doubt but what the two had taken part in a brawl at the Fonnau home, but was satisfied that the injury was not sufficient to have caused his death. A verdict by Coroner Dr. Osborne of Waldo made following the holding of an autopsy, gave pneumonia due to gas poisoning as the cause of death.

NON-SUPPORT CHARGED

Charged with non-support Jacob J. Newman was arrested at the Lincoln Hotel on W. Center-st. late yesterday afternoon and is being held at police headquarters pending a hearing before Municipal Judge William H. Martin. According to the affidavit, Newman has failed to provide for his two minor children since Feb. 1.

CLOTHES STOLEN

Earl Jordan of Ashland reported to the police last night that a suit of clothes belonging to him had been stolen from his car while the machine was parked at the rear of the Harding Hotel. The suit was described as being size 38, light gray in color and had never been worn. It was taken from the car sometime between 5 and 7 o'clock.

Good Cheer

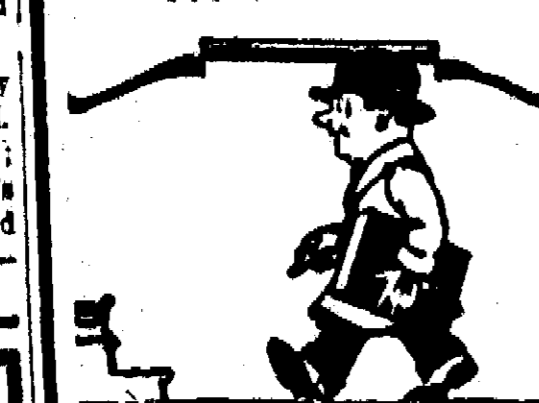

New fitness—new energy in a morning drink

Do this on rising in the morning if you feel out of sorts or unfit. Drink a glass of water, hot or cold. Add a little "Epsomade," and you will have a sparkling and refreshing drink. In an hour things will change. The drink will flush the intestines to eliminate the poisons and the waste. This is done in a prompt and pleasant, in a gentle and efficient way.

It is done by acids derived from lemon and grape.

Then remember this drink—"Epsomade" in water—whenever any clogging occurs. Take it any hour of the day. That's the quickest and the best way to correct things. Let a trial prove this to you. Get a small quantity, at small cost, at your druggist.—Adv.

DESIGNS OF SCHOOL BAGS

Representatives from practically all the churches of the city and county will be in attendance at the county inter-denominational women's conference to be held at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon at Epworth M. E. Church.

The meeting has been called at the request of the Women's Committee of the Ohio Council of Churches, which represents 17 Protestant denominations, cooperating with the national committee on World Friendship Among Children, in plans for sending thousands of friendship school bags as gifts from the children of the United States to the children of Mexico.

Mrs. W. H. Munk of Columbus, representative of the Evangelical Church in the governing body of the Ohio Council of Churches, will be the speaker at the meeting Friday, arrangements for which are in charge of Mrs. H. K. Henderson.

Mrs. Munk will bring a sample of the "friendship school bag" especially designed for the good will project and will tell of the successful carrying out of the other world friendship project that preceded it, the sending of "doll messengers of friendship" to Japan a year ago.
